

Fractal Project
by Bernadette

I was surfing the web for inspiration when I came upon a site, which contained Math Art. There were various representations of Fractals and Chaos. I structured my fractal based on one of those images and then made it my own by rearranging and color variations. This fractals shape particularly struck me. This shape seems almost animalistic. It makes me think of tiny microorganisms. It is also more fun and less exact than most fractals. Most fractals seem to be very structured and contained. I am not particularly fond of rulers and protractors and so I wanted to make a fractal that was untamed by worldly structure. If I was a fractal this is what I would look like. I like to call it the frazzled fractal. It is adventurous and massive and unruly.
