

A Simple Fractal

by Kaycee

My creative work about fractals is a painting of a fractal. This fractal is one in which at the middle of each arm another branches off at an angle. The painting shows two such fractals branching off a center arm. I was hoping to do a more complex fractal, but to even add just one more dynamic would make the fractal so complicated that I wouldn't have the time or the space on the canvas to finish it. When searching for inspiration for this project I came upon a website called "Fractal Gallery" (web.pinknet.cz/fractal/frindex.html). This site shows many great pictures of fractals that were computer generated. I tried to make one on my computer but it didn't work out.
